

OMNIAMERICAN BANK PARTNERS WITH WEILAND FINANCIAL GROUP TO ENHANCE ACCOUNT REPORTING SYSTEMS

BANNOCKBURN, Ill. – January 14, 2008 – OmniAmerican Bank has partnered with The Weiland Financial Group, Inc. to implement software systems that will enhance the bank's current reporting systems. Weiland Financial Group's proprietary Commercial Account Analysis (CAA™) and Commercial Account Analysis Web (CAAWeb™) will strengthen the bank's current commercial billing system by providing a versatile reporting solution capable of handling all reporting avenues with convenient access.

"No other software provider offered products and service like Weiland," said W. Bryan Thomas, senior vice president and director of treasury management for OmniAmerican Bank. "The software programs perform all the functions we were looking for, and the people are very responsive. Weiland has a fantastic product and we are anxious to get it implemented."

CAA, a full function analysis, billing, and profitability system for evaluating commercial accounts, will strengthen OmniAmerican's current core system by providing robust reporting solutions. The program is capable of handling all the reporting avenues entering the bank's system, including tracking and presenting balances on deposit, earnings allowances, and details regarding volume, price, and charges for each service.

CAAWeb (now View 360) complements CAA by publishing commercial account analysis statements via Internet access. Account officers can view account-level information or customer performance from any location to better serve their corporate clients. Ad hoc reports are easily created using account analysis data. CAAWeb also provides a means for automatic debit approval and initiation.
