BSB: Bank Services Billing

The BSB is an 822 for the world. Foreign banks use this global billing standard to invoice their customers for bank services. The BSB contains the same balance, service, transaction, and account data as the American electronic statement, the 822, but with the addition of tax and currency information. Corporations with international bank relationships can use the BSB to automate the analysis of their foreign bank statements for significant savings of both time and money.

BSB vs. 822

The BSB is similar to the ANSI X12 822 file, with the following exceptions:

- Contains tax & currency information
- International, public standard
- Written in XML format
- Submitted to ISO 20022
